A map of the northern part of the Netherlands. Harlingen is marked with a red pin and circled in red. Other cities shown include Amsterdam, Leeuwarden, Groningen, and Zwolle. Major roads like the A1, A2, and A10 are visible. The map also shows the IJsselmeer and Markermeer lakes.

The best option to get to Harlingen would be to fly to Amsterdam Schiphol Airport and then take a train from the airport to Harlingen. You can find train times and booking online here <https://www.onlytrain.com/train/amsterdam-airport-ams-to-harlingen/>

Buslines include lines 71 and 97 to Leeuwarden, line 75 to Franeker and 99 to Bolsward, Sneek and Heerenveen. Bus line 132 will get you to the start of the Afsluitdijk. In summer, there's a connection to Alkmaar in the Western Netherlands (Qliner 351).

Weymouth, UK

How to get to Weymouth

Train and Bus Travel

Weymouth is in Dorset and is served by good rail and bus links. If you want to travel east of Weymouth, in the direction of London, you will need to get the South West Train Service. For any route heading West (e.g. Devon, Bristol, Yeovil) you will need to catch the First Great Western Service.

Arriving by Air

If you are flying into or home from Weymouth, the nearest Airport is Bournemouth Airport which is approximately 1 hour away. You can take a train to Bournemouth and then a bus to the airport. Alternatively Southampton airport is a 2 hour train journey away.
